Women's leader rotates role

There were nervous mutterings among old-line politicians when Eleanor Holmes Norton sat down behind her desk as New York City Human Rights Commissioner, according to the October McCall's portrait of the 33-year-old black New York attorney and feminist.

"I don't for a moment believe that women have suffered the same kind of injustices that blacks have,"

says the former American Civil Liberties lawyer. "But still, many of the psychological and economic problems are the same."

"This country would go bankrupt in a day if the Supreme Court suddenly ordered the powers that be to pay back wages to children of slaves and to the women who've worked all their lives for half wages or no pay."

According to the McCall's article, her work on women's behalf has brought Mrs. Norton some criticism from the black community to which she replies, "Black people and women are going to have to get together if we're going to create some change in this country."

Mrs. Norton, who makes $30,000 a year at the job to which John Lindsay appointed her in 1970, also teaches a course on Women and the Law at New York University and hosts a weekly television program, "Open Circuit."

Commenting for McCall's on her present position in the New York City Administration she says:

"I just hope I'm not a token . . . I don't mind being a pioneer. I just don't want to always be up here alone."

Visitor from Africa...

Duncan and Geraldine Logan. Standing, Kweku William Egyir from Ghana, Miss Jaqueline Allen and Mrs. Veneal Henderson.

Bond heads legal center

Julian Bond has accepted the presidency of the Southern Poverty Law Center, a Montgomery-based organization seeking legal remedies for inequality and injustice to poor people.

Georgia legislator Bond, who gained national attention first when he fought the state body's refusal to seat him and again when he led a challenge delegation to the 1968 Democratic Convention is one of America's most prominent black spokesmen.

Concerned that poverty is a major factor in the failure of blacks to achieve equal status in America, Bond has long been in sympathy with the fundamental purposes of the Center. As its president, he heads a council of national leaders who determine priorities among cases awaiting the attention of staff lawyers.

The Southern Poverty Law Center has brought suit on behalf of poor people when poverty has been a cause of injustice. The Center's lawyers have introduced new legal theories to establish important precedents in cases involving Constitutional rights of representation in government, access to municipal services, equal legal protection and other basic freedoms.

A current case pending in Federal District court, Selmont Improvement Association vs. Dallas County Commission, involves poor black citizens of a small community near Selma, Alabama, whose streets are unpaved trenches while adjacent white neighborhoods enjoy streets that were paved free by the county.

Denounce 'Teen' suit

Ronald Charity, president of Miss Black Teenage America Pageants Incorporated, on the advice of his attorneys in New York City and Baltimore issued the following statement, in regards to a news release from Hal Jackson Associates of New York claiming a suit against the Miss Black Teenage America Pageant held in Baltimore September 11th.

"No law suit was filed against us and the only suit that was lost was a suit that was filed in the Federal Court of Baltimore by Hal Jackson and his Associates, when they attempted to get a temporary restraining order to stop us from holding our Pageant Saturday, September 11th in the Baltimore Civic Center, after an extensive hearing before Judge Blair of the Federal District Court of Baltimore, Judge Blair denied the petition stating they had no case and we held our Pageant."

"In addition Mr. Jackson is trying to do by subterfuge what he can not do legally because he has no copy-right on the Miss Black Teenage America name. Furthermore our attorneys are preparing a suit against Mr. Jackson and his Associates for One Million Dollars. They tried to disrupt our Pageant but to no avail and Miss Sharon Elizabeth Sexton of Detroit was crowned Miss Black Teenage America," he said.

Her prizes included a four day trip to Africa, during the Thanksgiving Holidays and a renewable $1000 Scholarship to Virginia State College in Petersburg, Virginia. Miss Sexton will be making appearance across the country on behalf of the Miss Black Teenage America Pageant.

SAVE BREAD

Don't throw away leftover bread — make bread crumbs of unused slices and store them in a tight container in the freezer. You'll find that you use them often to bread pork or poultry; to put "crunch" on casseroles, au gratin vegetables or scalloped dishes; or "plump" meat loaves, timbales or croquettes.

Rev. O. C. Collins, Sr., is seen here presenting his son, Rev. Collins, Jr., with his license to preach. The ceremonies were held recently at Progressive Baptist Church where Collins, Sr. is pastor.

By the way...
by Joe Black

During my tenure in the army during World War II, I remember some G.I.'s sitting around talking about their experiences on the battlefield. Some of the vets would tell of the grief and pain they experienced when a buddy was killed in action; but then they would add: "But I said a silent prayer of thanks that it wasn't me." Soldiers can be excused for taking this attitude; because, in battle, they have very little control over their destinies.

I doubt if anyone openly courts death; but today there are many individuals who think that they are "cool"; when, in reality, they are carrying on a flirtation with the "grim reaper." Who are these foolish ones? They are the drug abusers of today, the "trippers," "sniffers," and "mainliners." Are you numbered among the sick individuals who are seeking dreams-come-true through the use of narcotics? Before you reply, let me ask you a few questions.

Do you start your day with a pep pill? And about mid-morning take another pill to calm your nerves?

Because the new fashions have excited you, do you gulp a diet capsule before lunch? Take another diet pill before dinner? Then two other tablets to assure you a good night's sleep?

You may be asking, "what's the big deal?" Well, if you are not getting this medication legitimately, with a doctor's prescription, then you are your own "pusher"—and you may be hooked on "ups" and "downs."

So, before the bell tolls to let us know that narcotics have taken another life, may I suggest that you visit your doctor?

Interpretive dancer makes his TV debut

An Anthology of Afro-American Writing" and "Four Young Lady Poets." The tortures of drug addiction are explored through dance and poetry when "Soul" — NET's weekly series of Black entertainment and culture — begins a new season Wednesday, October 6 at 10 p.m. (EDT) over PBS, the Public Broadcasting Service.

The new and innovative George Faison Universal Dance Experience performs an original ballet entitled "Poppy" based on the music of several Black composers, among them Miles Davis. And playwright-poet Imamu Amiri Baraka (LeRoi Jones) reads one of his compelling works, "Bad News for Your Highness." Still another guest on this season premiere is the young poet Mae Jackson, who reads "After Midnight," in the memory of Soledad Brother George Jackson, killed recently in an alleged escape attempt at San Quentin. Host for the show is producer Ellis Haizlip.

"Spidery intensity" and "strong audience impact" are the words used by The New York Times in describing the Universal Dance Experience. Its founder and choreographer, 26-year-old George Faison, organized the company about a year ago after leaving the Broadway show "Purlie."

Faison is a former member of the internationally-acclaimed Alvin Ailey American Dance Theatre, with which he toured Africa, Europe, and the United States in 1967. Born in Washington, D.C., he began his career at Howard University, where he not only studied dance but also choreographed for university and local theater group productions.

In 1966 Faison came to New York City and joined the Harlem Youth Dance Co.

Quincy Jones cuts new disc

Quincy Jones, who rarely has time between motion picture scores to record an album for his own exposure, has come up with a new effort entitled "Smackwater Jack," to be released on A&M Records.

The album, due for release this month, contains music from such Jones soundtracks as "The Anderson Tapes," "Ironside," and "The Bill Cosby Show" (Cos. himself, even delivers a vocal solo on this tune, called "Hickey-Burr").

"Smackwater Jack" also offers the vocal debut of Quincy, who sings the title track and a very inventive version of Marvin Gaye's "What's Going On," with Valerie Simpson.

The album was recorded in New York, and features some of the best studio and performing musicians in the business.

"Smackwater Jack" is Jones' fourth album for A&M. The others are "Walking in Space," "Gula Matar," and the soundtrack from the motion picture "John and Mary."

Sports Horizon

By BILL LITTLE

The so called big small college football game last week between Alcorn A&M and Tennessee State left many of the announced crowd of 17,006 disappointed. The consensus of opinion was that both teams played well below par. After the game, won by Tennessee, 18-7, the coaches blamed the officials and the soggy turf for their poor showing. They probably were right, but add another complaint to the issue—the coaches themselves.

TSU USES BREAKS

The downpour about three hours before game time made the Memorial Stadium turf hard to negotiate. The Big Blue converted two first quarter bobbles by Alcorn into a lead that was never relinquished. TSU's third touchdown came near the end of the first half when the massive Tennessee forward wall stopped the Braves shy of a first down on a gamble on fourth down at the Alcorn 40 yard line.

When the decision to go for the first down back-fired it sent Alcorn to the dressing room on the short-end of an 18-7 count rather than being only five back at the intermission. A punishing Alcorn ground game allowed the Braves from Lorman, Miss. to dominate a scoreless second half. Coach Marino Casem, a portrait of frustration after the game, must have wondered what the outcome might have been had his Braves been able to capitalize on their scoring opportunities in the second half. One drive ate up 94 yards but Alcorn was just shy of the end zone on a fourth down plunge. "JEFFERSON STREET"

Those who called Joe Gilliam a better quarterback than Eldridge Dickey were not so vocal after "Jefferson Street" was able to hit on just 10 of 27 pass attempts.

Gilliam, who passed for 15 TD's last season, fired a pair of his famous long bombs for scores after freshman halfback Tyrone Cooks blasted over from the one early in the game for TSU's first touchdown. Gilliam hit former Carver quarterback Frank Thaxton with a well thrown 55 yarder but his 40 yard scoring toss following the Alcorn gamble before the end of the first half was up for grabs before the Alcorn defensive back slipped to the ground allowing Charles Wade to gather in the lofty toss right at the goal line with 13 seconds remaining in the first half. Al Reese, the TSU kicking specialist, missed on his fourth placement effort. The usually reliable New Orleans booter, in addition to missing after his team's three touchdowns, failed on a field goal attempt after TSU recovered an Alcorn fumble on the first series of downs at the Braves 27.

ALCORN IN COMMAND

William Wooley, pressed into service when Alcorn couldn't move the ball against Grambling in Chicago two weeks ago despite being only a freshman from Vicksburg, Miss., earned him the starting role at quarterback. Wooley led the Braves to a total offense edge over his more heralded counterpart Gilliam and Tennessee State. Alcorn dominated the second half and had 329 offensive yards to 287 for TSU. Alcorn completed 12 of 23 passes and had 75 offensive plays to 67 for the victors.

Wooley marched the Braves up and down the field, mixing his passes with a brutal running attack, but the Big Blue allowed only a 94 yard drive in the second quarter to run its fruition course. Wooley personally accounted for that marker on a four yard keeper. Oscar McAdory kicked the point.

SERIES MAY END

The win was the first of the season for Tennessee as the Big Blue was making its initial outing. TSU also opened its undefeated 1970 campaign with a victory over Alcorn. The Braves are 0-2 after dropping tilts to Grambling and TSU. Casem began the season with a 25-3-1 mark as the Alcorn boss.

The game was marred by penalties, 12 against TSU for 129 yards, and Alcorn penalized 75 for their six infractions. Coach John Merritt of TSU was quoted as saying that something will have to be done about the officiating if the series with Alcorn is to be continued. His meaning is vague but it seems to me that the two schools should be able to find some officials between here and the moon who would be agreeable to them. The officials who worked the game came from three different conferences. The fact of the matter is that both coaches have distrust for each other. Merritt coached at Jackson State, an arch rival of Alcorn, before taking over reins of the Big Blue.

While we are on the topic of officials Merritt and Jake Gaither of Florida A&M often feud on the choice of officials for their game. When they got together last year in Tallahassee at the last moment a neutral team of officials was flown in to satisfy the two famed mentors. When Florida visits Nashville October 23, the officials will be assigned by mutual agreement by the pre-dominantly white Ohio Valley Conference.

Going bear hunting?

To the four men in the car there was nothing unusual about a bear rumaging through a garbage can in search of food. The foursome were traveling through the Great Smoky Mountains National Park. However, this particular big bruin seemed unduly tame so they gave it some food. And since the bear kept coming back for more and getting closer each time, the men were able to get it to enter the trunk of their car.

Now, a bear that has lost its fear of humans may think nothing about nosing around in the open trunk of an automobile, but if the trunk lid is suddenly slammed shut, trapping the animal, its reaction is certainly unpredictable. And in the case of this particular bear, it was, for nothing happened.

For several minutes not a sound came from the trapped animal. So the four men piled back into their car and headed down the highway. They had trapped themselves a real live bear. Just what they planned to do with their catch, no one knows. But the bear had some ideas of his own about the situation. He just clawed his way through the back seat into the car with the men. Of course, when this happened the automobile came to a screeching halt, four doors flew open, and the four men literally exploded from the car.

Now in complete charge, old snuffle-nose did what bears like to do—eat. This he did until the rations gave out and only the smell of food remained. However, bears are willing to work for their dinner and this one was no exception. He took the interior of that car apart in his search for more grub. Satisfied that there was no more food around, he finally left the car and leisurely wandered off—probably to look for another garbage can.

Most animals in the wild are far more afraid of man than he is of them, and they will nearly always keep out of man's sight. However, when wild animals do lose their instinctive fear of man, some of them frequently become dangerous. This is certainly true of Tennessee's black bear.

Ageless Satchel Shows new skill

It was the consummate portrait, so to speak, the like of which never had been done before nor was likely ever to be duplicated again anywhere or anytime.

There he stood, the one and only Leroy "Satchel" Paige, wearing an open colored flaming pink shirt, white linen shorts and a pair of size 12 sneakers. Satch took a tighter grip on his tennis racket and peered through his horn-rimmed eye-glasses across the net. He checked his doubles' partner, Bobby Thomson, alongside him. Thomson nodded.

"Ready?" Paige then called across the net to Hall of Fame Hank Greenberg and Otto Graham, the ex-quarterback for the Cleveland Browns and later day coach of the Washington Redskins.

Greenberg and Graham signified they were ready, whereupon Satch served the ball and the four players volleyed until Paige finally forced Graham into a point producing error. Satchel got a fine hand from the crowd. "Beautiful shot!" Graham called out to him.

Leroy "Satchel" Paige didn't move a muscle or give any sign he had heard the applause. He heard some before in his time.

Actually, Satch does have a few grey hairs, but whose counting? Certainly nobody who watched him compete in the first annual sports celebrity tennis tournament for the Dewars Cup at the Concord Hotel here.

Hank Greenberg, a spry kid of 60, outlasted such younger competitors as Rick Barry, Emile Griffith, Allie Sherman, Gil Clancy, President Nixon's press secretary, Ron Ziegler, and finally editor-cartoonist Murray Olderman to be awarded the cup by Pancho Gonzales, the tournament chairman, but whom do you think drew the most attention and the most interviews?

Satch, natch. "These new sports writers me so all they keep asking don't know anything to ask me is about age," he said during a break in the play. "Same thing every time I go on TV. 'Gotta interview myself. It's all of 'em say' I heard you did this and did that. All they say is 'I heard.' They never saw me pitch."

"How do you feel about going into the Hall of Fame a few weeks ago?" a newsman wanted to know.

"Great," said Satch. "You know when I went there I was lookin' for more than 124 players in the hall of fame. I was surprised. But it's wonderful bein' in. There's no maybe so about that."

"You think baseball is too slow now?" He was asked.

"They used to say the same thing when I was pitching," Paige said, remembering. "It's pretty slow now though. What they do now is walk. In my day you used to run."

"What can they do to help the game in your opinion?" "Spruce it up." "How?" "Like trying to get a lady umpire. Sure, I think women can umpire. I know they can play ball because I've seen 'em do it."

"When did you pick up tennis?" "I played when I was comin' up in school in Mobile, Ala. That's been quite a spell. I'm only a beginner. That's all I am. How can I be anything else if I played baseball more'n 40 years?"

Jazzman Tab Smith dies

Another Good Musician is gone, bandleader-saxophonist arranger and composer Talmadge (Tab) Smith 62, died recently.

The short-stubby soft-spoken jazz artist's extraordinary saxophone styling, attained him fame. He played with such name bands as Lucky Millender (1936-39); Teddy Wilson (1939-41); Count Basie (1941-45) and continued to skyrocket with his own combo starting in 1945.

It all stemmed from a two weeks' trial at the New York Savoy Ballroom, which lasted for over two years. "I will Live True To You" . . . "My Mother's Eyes" . . . "When The Lights Go On Again All Over The World" . . . "Sweet Slumber" . . . and "Tab's Blues" are only a few of Smith's records.

Prior to hitting the big-time in the mid '30's 'Tab' had played with several noted St. Louis groups including Eddie Johnson, Dewey Jackson, and Fate Marable's Riverboat orchestra. Due to illness Smith switch from saxophone to the organ in 1965 . . . A bright future was predicted for Tab's as a promising jazz organist.

He was born in Kingston, N.C. receiving a saxophone (C. Melody) for a Christmas present, during his early teens. After a successful stint with the Carolina stompers and others, Smith moved to St. Louis, Mo. to continue his music career in 1930.

The rest is history. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Shirley Mason Smith; sons: Talmadge Jr. and Douglass, a daughter, Gladys Eva and three sisters.

Black theatre to JFK Center

OPERA/SOUTH, the new company backed by three black colleges in and near Jackson, Miss., which started operation last May with a production of "Aida," has been invited to take its second production, "Turandot," to Washington next May for a performance in Kennedy Center.

In announcing the invitation Sister Elise, general director of the company, said that after careful consideration OPERA/SOUTH's board had decided to "postpone" a Washington debut until later. "We feel that while OPERA/SOUTH must offer its production to cities outside Jackson, we should first establish our deep-south character by touring cities in the region. Then we can think of visiting the nation's new cultural center," she said they would seriously consider visiting at least one southern center next spring.

OPERA/SOUTH is the producing company of the Mississippi Inter-Collegiate Opera Guild, which was formed last winter by Jackson State, Tougaloo and Uca State Colleges, to offer their students the opportunity of appearing in professional productions and to provide a showcase for young professional singers just starting their careers.

Digging up Black pride

Who would think that an old jar, a Civil War Army boot, and a chimney broom would be crucial in the development of Black pride? But they do serve that function in Bedford-Stuyvesant N. Y., where youngsters under Project Weeksville are literally "Digging for Black Pride" and coming up with artifacts which link them to their 19th century ancestors.

Under Project Weeksville, Black children are learning of early Bedford-Stuyvesant residents who held off white raiders during the Irish Draft Riots in 1863. With the help of historian Robert Swann and archaeologist William Harley, they are discovering signs of a highly organized and sophisticated Black community that existed in Weeksville during the early 1800s.

There is evidence of this community's self-sufficiency, contrary to popular belief. Researched documents show that the community had created and administered various social and economic institutions — homes for orphans and the aged and a community insurance plan, for example. Oral history, provided by elderly local residents, reinforces Project Weeksville's finds.

At Public School 243, Black children with the aid of Project Weeksville are reaching back to their African past and figuratively digging for Black pride. Black Journal visits a kindergarten class, where Barbara Jackson teaches children about their African heritage. The children are seen learning African songs, and chanting "once upon a time all the Black children in the world came from Africa."

Drunk drivers beware

All counties in Tennessee are participating in a program to determine the level of alcohol present in drinking driver suspects and traffic fatalities.

The program is a joint effort between the Tennessee Department of Public Health and the Department of Safety.

Breath and blood specimens are collected by medical examiners, the highway patrol, and other law enforcement agencies from drivers suspected of being intoxicated, and all persons involved in a traffic fatality. These specimens are forwarded to the regional forensic science centers of the Chief Medical Examiner for evaluation.

A tabulation of the alcohol tests performed in these centers from January 1971 - June 1971 show a total of 2,979 tests. Of this group 1,625 were breath tests performed on drinking driver suspects. The average time between the collection of the specimens and the mailing of the report is four days including week-ends.

About 20 per cent of the specimens submitted reveal an alcohol value of below the state legal level of 0.10 per cent. This is a comparable figure with other published figures and tends to indicate that law enforcement is actively pursuing the drinking driver.

Jackson's trademark, "Miss Black Teenage America" by holding an imitative Miss Black Teenage America Pageant in Baltimore, Maryland September 11th.

The Jacksons' company, Hal Jackson Productions, Inc. sponsored the original and first pageant which selected the authentic Miss Black Teenage America who is June Kelly of Ft. Worth, Texas, in Atlanta, Georgia, July 28, 1971. The pageant is presently being seen in many cities across the country as a 90 minute color television special starring Ronnie Dyson and Howard Rice of "Room 222."

The Charities have already acknowledged the Jacksons' first claim to the title "Miss Black Teenage America" as being earlier than their claim in a July 1971 New York court case which the Charities instituted against the Jacksons. As a result of the Jacksons' evidence presented in court, the Charities withdrew their case with prejudice, which means they can never sue the Jacksons again on the issue of trademark infringement.

The Jacksons said "it would seem to us that faced with the fact our first use date filed with the U. S. Dept. of Patents is a full year prior to the Charities first use date, the Charities would not seek to continue in their efforts to present a 2nd Miss Black Teenage America pageant and thereby confuse the public and discredit the 1st Miss Black Teenage America pageant and the good and wholesome image it has created for our teenage young ladies all over the country. This confusion is going to damage us all as black people."

The Jacksons' will be represented by the Baltimore law firm of Carroll and Murphy and will seek $250,000 in damages for usurpation of their trademark and will seek to enjoin the Charities from any further use of the title "Miss Black Teenage America."

Jackson 5 cartoon tops list

The Jackson 5 Show, the animated series the premiered Saturday, Sept. 11 topped the Nielsen ratings for Saturday morning kid-video series for all three networks in the time periods between 7:30 a.m. and 12 noon.

The New York overnight ratings revealed the show, which premiered on ABC-TV, led with a 48.3 percent audience share. In Los Angeles, the Jackson 5 Show beat its competitors with a 49.3 percent audience share.

Although the ratings are not in yet for The Jackson 5 special that aired on ABC Sunday, Sept. 19, ABC-TV network officials are so impressed with the show that they already have considered another special with the group. ABC network officials plan to use fan letters in response to the show as a gauge to help them make a decision about another show.

Navy Lieutenant serves as White House social aide

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Since Aug. 13, 1970, Navy Lieutenant (junior grade) Aaron Spaulding has been serving as a White House social aide. He is one of 34 officers from all the military services to be so assigned.

Being a social aide to the President is strictly as collateral duty and it is assigned on volunteer basis only.

Mr. Spaulding must arrange with his own superiors to insure that his White House duties do not detract from the performance of his regular duties.

He is presently a financial management analyst for the Command System Support Activity's Comptroller Department at the Washington Navy Yard.

A native of Durham, N. C., Lt. Spaulding is a graduate of North Carolina Central University and attended the University of Pennsylvania's Wharton School of Business where he completed two years of post-graduate study.

His job as a social aide, while on the surface may appear to have glamor, requires a lot of hard work.

He must know everything about White House functions, including such things as names of the dignitaries present, the schedule of events, rules of protocol, and numerous historical facts about the White House.

When the guests for a White House function arrive, many of them are at the White House for the first time. Lt. Spaulding and the other aides assigned will greet them at the door, explain the program of events, escort them to the reception area, answer any questions they might have and help them in any other way they can.

Lt. Spaulding's job at the White House is to make each guest feel at ease and at home. He does this in his job as assistant host, as a representative of the President and as a representative of the United States.

Lt. Spaulding is the son of

Mr. and Mrs. Asa T. Spaulding Sr. of 1608 Lincoln st., Durham, N. C.

He reported to his present job after 6 months of instruction at the Supply Corps

School in Athens, Ga.

Mr. Spaulding earned his commission through the Navy's Officer Candidate School, Newport, R. I., in August, 1969.

Conyers says support blacks

Congressman John Conyers of Michigan said that blacks must overcome their reluctance to support a black man or woman for President. Most people would think that blacks were the biggest fools in the world if they continued to run for governors, mayors, and Members of Congress, but looked in the mirror and disqualified themselves from positions of national leadership.

In remarks prepared for the Black Coalition of New Haven, Connecticut, Conyers stated that the entire country should now be put on notice that we are no longer satisfied being black leaders, but have resolved to take our rightful place as national leaders.

Clearly, if we are honest with ourselves, meaningful political participation has been continuously closed to most of black America. The Republican Party has never been an alternative and thus the Democratic Party has never wanted to nor has it ever been effectively forced to respond to the needs of blacks. The political processes have failed us precisely because the political leadership has failed us.

Conyers called for a black political strategy for 1972, which includes drafting a black to run as a Democratic candidate for President. He again urged Mayor Carl Stokes to offer himself as a candidate and expressed hope that he and other black leaders could persuade Stokes to become a serious Democratic contender for the nomination.

Indict Miss. election board

The Department of Justice has filed suit against the Board of Supervisors of Hinds County, Mississippi; the County Election Commission and the Democratic Executive Committee on charges of implementing a redistricting plan in violation of the Voting Rights Act.

Attorney General John N. Mitchell said the civil complaint was filed in U.S.

District Court at Jackson.

The suit said that the county completed its submission of the plan to the Department, as required by the Act, on May 28, 1971. The Department made known its objection on July 14, 1971, well within the 60-day statutory time limit for decision under Section Five. At that time Mr. Mitchell wrote to county officials saying that the proposed changes appeared to dilute black voting strength in the city of Jackson.

Despite the Department's objection, the defendants implemented the redistricting plan by holding elections for the Board of Supervisors on August 3 and August 24, the suit charged.

The complaint asked that a three-judge court be established to hear the case, as provided by the Act, and also that the panel find the present plan invalid and direct the defendants to develop and implement a new plan which satisfies the requirements of the Fifteenth Amendment and the Voting Rights Act.

The Hinds County Democratic Executive Committee is a quasi-public body which is empowered by state law to conduct Democratic primary elections to nominate candidates for county office.

The Board of Election Commissioners conduct general elections for county office, and the Board of Supervisors is a governing body with authority to set the boundaries of the five districts in the county.

Black medical schools receive $1-million grant

National Medical Fellowships, Inc., the only nationwide, private organization that provides financial aid to minority group medical students, announced that 1,164 grants totaling $1,687,950 have been approved, for the 1971-72 academic year.

Awards were made to minority group students at 96 of the 107 United States medical schools which will enroll students this year.

Of the total number of grants presented, 94 went to students at Meharry Medical School and 85 to students at Howard University, the nation's two predominantly Black schools of medicine.

Among the other medical schools with significant numbers of NMF awardees are the University of California at San Francisco with 44, the University of Michigan with 46, and the University of Illinois with 36.

Once limited to Black medical students, NMF grants now are awarded also to other minority group students across the country. Awardees this year included 93 Mexican-Americans, 18 Puerto Ricans, and 8 American Indians, a significant increase over the number awarded last year to these groups.

Women students received 21% of all awards.

National Medical Fellowships attempts to aid all needy students in U.S. medical schools from groups presently under-represented in the medical profession. They must be U.S. citizens and in either the first or second year of medical school. The organization's aim is to help increase the number of physicians from these groups.

Chamber to meet

Memphis businessmen who are concerned about inequities in the gross receipts tax on business will have an opportunity to sound off on the subject Tuesday, Oct. 5, before the business tax act subcommittee of the State Legislature's Fiscal Review Committee.

The subcommittee, headed by Representative Tom Jensen of Knoxville, will conduct a hearing on the new tax at 10 a.m. in the State Office Bldg., Room 1206. The hearing is the second of six that are scheduled across the state preparatory to possible changes in the tax when the Legislature reconvenes in February.

Retailers and wholesalers who are members of the Memphis Area Chamber of Commerce are being invited before the subcommittee in a letter from R.M. Mac Hunt, vice president of the Chamber's Public Affairs Division. "This is a matter important to all businessmen, and this is an opportunity for those who wish to do so to ask questions and express opinions," Mr. Hunt said.

Serving with Jensen on the subcommittee are Representatives Leonard Dunavant of Millington and John Bragg of Murfreesboro. Mr. Dunavant and Senator Milton Hamilton of Union City are co-vice chairmen of the full Fiscal Review Committee.

Members of the full committee, who are sitting in on one or more of the six hearings, are Representatives John Hicks of Nashville, committee chairman, Bob Hawks of Memphis and David Copeland of Chattanooga, and Senators Ernest Crouch of McMinnville, Marshall Nave of Elizabethton, and Douglas Henry of Nashville. Ex-officio members include House Speaker James McKinney of Madisonville, and Lt. Gov. John Wilder of Somerville.

Churchman demand dismissal, Attica prison executives

NEW YORK — The Rev. Charles E. Cobb, New York, executive director of the Commission for Racial Justice of the United Church of Christ, recently called for "immediate removal" of the warden of Attica Correctional Facility and the New York State Commissioner of Correction.

He also urged "responsible people" to ensure Governor Rockefeller for "the decision to resort to an armed attack to free hostages at the prison."

"Such actions by a few people in power to protect property and images instead of lives cannot be condoned," the Rev. Mr. Cobb said. "They are leading the American society, faced by demands to reform itself, to institute repressive actions against Blacks, Puerto Ricans, other minority groups and poor people."

The Rev. Mr. Cobb quoted the late President John F. Kennedy's statement that "those who make peaceful revolution impossible make violent revolution inevitable" and added: "Governmental policies and practices which demonstrate little regard for human life are making peaceful change impossible in this country."

The Commission for Racial Justice of the two-million-member United Church of Christ has been involved directly in the fight for penal reform and the abolishment of capital punishment. The commission called upon 25 national Black leaders to conduct a complete investigation into the condition of prisons in the United States.

Comparing the assault on the Attica prison by guards and state troopers to the Sharpsville Massacre in South Africa, the Rev. Mr. Cobb said that "officials who set and implement such policies not only contribute to conditions which breed violent revolution but set a violent example of how to achieve political ends."

The commission which the Rev. Mr. Cobb heads is responsible for coordinating and mobilizing the resources of the United Church for the empowerment of minority people, fair employment, housing and education.

Libraries seek info on blacks

ORANGEGURG, S. C. — The libraries of five predominantly black institutions have launched a cooperative venture to describe, locate and make accessible published materials by and about black people before 1950 in six Southern states — Alabama, Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee and Virginia.

The search, made possible by a grant to North Carolina Central University at Durham from the Office of Education, is being conducted by Tuskegee (Ala.) Institute, Atlanta (Ga.) University, South Carolina State College at Orangeburg, Fisk University at Nashville, Tenn., and North Carolina Central.

Libraries, archives and individuals in the six states are requested to report manuscripts, newspapers, periodicals, bibliographies and lists describing their published works by and about black people to the libraries in the various states.

After they have been compiled, the lists will be forwarded to North Carolina Central's School of Library Science where they will become part of the African-American Materials Project, according to Dr. Annette L. Phinazee, director of the project.

Dr. Spellman gets post

OAKLAND, Calif. — Dr. Mitchell Wright Spellman, distinguished surgeon, medical administrator and educator has been elected to the Board of Directors of Kaiser Foundation Health Plan, Inc. and Kaiser Foundation hospitals — two organizations which comprise the nation's largest non-governmental health care delivery system.

Announcing Dr. Spellman's election, President Clifford H. Keene, M.D., said "We are pleased to have this opportunity to strengthen our leadership and to continue earlier efforts toward broadening the experience and expertise of these two boards."

"We are especially proud to welcome Dean Spellman—the first black to sit on the two panels—as a representative of medical education."

Since January, 1969, Dr. Spellman's primary efforts have been devoted to his position as first Dean of the Charles R. Drew Postgraduate Medical School.

This new private institution, located in the Watts-Willowbrook area of Los Angeles, is affiliated with the Los Angeles County-Martin Luther King, Jr. General hospital and medical schools of the University of Southern California and UCLA.

Dr. Spellman becomes the third physician on the 12-member boards which share identical membership. Other physicians among the directors are Dr. Keene, also a surgeon, and Dr. Robert J. Glaser, an internist and former dean of the Stanford University Medical School who is now vice president of The Commonwealth Fund.

Chairman of the Boards of Directors of the nonprofit Health Plan and Hospitals corporations is Edgar F. Kaiser, who also heads the separate and independent Kaiser industrial operations.

NCC blacks launch cooperative venture

NEW YORK, N.Y. — The six black denominations which are members of the 33-denomination National Council of Churches are taking steps to strengthen their Christian education programs in a new cooperative venture.

This and several other features and information of interest to Christian educators is the subject of the entire current issue of Spectrum, international journal of religious education published bi-monthly by the NCC.

The issue was developed by the Black Christian Education Administrative and Coordinating Committee which is planning the entire project. They are representatives from the following participating denominations: African Methodist Episcopal, African Methodist Episcopal Zion, Christian Methodist Episcopal, National Baptist Convention U.S.A., National Baptist Convention of America and Progressive National Baptist.

Cooperating with them in the project are the Church of God, Anderson, Indiana and the United Methodist Church.

According to Harold M. Martin, editor of Spectrum, the special issue is an attempt to provide church educators with an opportunity to "discover values from the Black community and to locate resources for use in a wide variety of educational settings."

Still need your pilot light turned on?

WE'LL BE IN YOUR NEIGHBORHOOD NEXT WEEK

We don't want any of our customers waiting in the cold. That's why we designed a plan to have everyone's pilot light turned on before the first cold day.

To speed things up, we're sending an MLGW task force into your neighborhood one day a week. All you need do is tell us that you want this service. As soon as we receive your request, we'll set you up for the next scheduled move through your area.

But don't delay. The temperature may drop anytime and our servicemen could be working another area. Check the map to see what day we'll be in your neighborhood. Then let us know you want your pilot light safely lighted free of charge.

A tribute to B. B. King--an uncrowned king

(Photographs & text by Darryl Cowherd.)
In the heyday of Beethoven's the Prime Minister of Britain bestowed upon the four white performers the highest awards of the land.
These accolades and recognitions were eagerly accepted by the Liverpool quartet, which openly and admiringly copied the blues and rhythms spawned in the black ghettos of America.
What then will "official" America pay when the "origination" of this music pass on, as was witnessed recently in the death of King Fleming?

Singing simple and beautiful truth they have touched the inner core of black lives leaving us only to say, "he knows, he knows."
They were our spokesmen when we virtually had none. They were our eyes to the degradation we saw and lived. They were our ears to what we heard and could never forget. They moved more souls with grunts and groans than all of white America's so-called writers could with all the words of the world.

BAD B. B.

For far too long black America has failed to pay due respect to its "true" artists. Only when some high governmental official endorses our dead artistic giants do we speak up.
But the treasure and measure of greatness of our artists is not in death but in life. And typical of a giant in life is B. B. King, the uncrowned "King of the Blues."

O mighty beautiful King
We kneel before you.
Blessed with the "Wise Truths" you have given us we humbly beg your forgiveness and further dedicate ourselves to the spirit of life and love that is ours and yours.
May peace and happiness reign supreme in the quiet nights and fruitful days of your life BAD B. B.
